history

The brand name associated with many frozen foods at the supermarket happens to be the same name of the person who refined the process of freezing foods: Birdseye. Clarence Birdseye is credited with creating a quick freezing method in 1924 which would preserve the color, nutrients, and integrity of food. He was inspired to develop this technique after learning how the Inuit indigenous peoples fished and quickly preserve daily catches in the extreme cold climates. This technique was unlike previously used slow-freeze methods, which would cause the formation of large ice crystals. Birdseye's quick-freezing process ended up leading to 168 patents, which cover not only the freezing technique but also the type of paper used and ink on packaging.

process of freezing fruits and vegetables

Frozen fruits and vegetables begin just the same as their fresh counterparts. However, fresh fruits and vegetables may be picked before peak ripeness so that they can ripen during transportation to stores. Fruits and vegetables that are going to be frozen are picked when they are at their most ripe; washed, possibly blanched (usually tougher vegetables like broccoli) and flash frozen to inactivate the enzymes that result in them going bad. While frozen fruits and vegetables may be slightly softer in texture when thawed, they have equivalent nutrient content to their fresh counterparts and allow people access to delicious produce all year round.

benefits of freezing

- Long shelf life
- Less waste- thaw just what you need
- Access to produce outside of regular growing season
- Minimally processed
- Time saving
- Just as nutritious as fresh counterparts
- Can lead to quicker, healthier dinner
- Reduces your stress in the kitchen

starches/grains

- Brown Rice
- Wild Rice
- Quinoa
- GF bread and whole-grain breads
- Corn tortillas

Did you know breads should not be refrigerated?

Breads go stale when refrigerated but maintain their integrity when frozen.

In the refrigerator, the water evaporates from the bread making it dry and tough.

vegetables

- Peppers (chopped, sliced, etc.)
- Butternut squash
- Onions (chopped, sliced, etc.)
- Spinach/Kale
- Cauliflower (riced, florets, etc.)
- Broccoli (florets)
- Edamame (shelled)
- Green beans
- Peas
- Corn
- Mixed bags

herbs/seasonings

- Ginger
- Garlic
- Basil
- Parsley
- Cilantro

proteins

- Chicken (ground, whole pieces, etc.)
- Turkey (ground, breast, whole)
- Shrimp
- Fish
- Beans

other

- Frozen and minimally processed prepared foods (meatballs, pastas, etc. to use as a base in a pinch)
- Sauces (watch the sodium content)
- Fruit pops
- chocolate-covered frozen bananas
- leftover whole-grain pancakes and waffles

fruits

- Bananas (peeled)
- Strawberries
- Blueberries
- Raspberries
- Pineapple
- Avocado
- Mixed bags

best practices

be sure to...

- Season with your favorite herbs and spices
- Utilize a wide variety of frozen ingredients to create delicious stir fries, soups, smoothies, and more!
- Combine your frozen foods with pantry and refrigerator staples
- Keep extra bags of frozen products around for when you find yourself in a pinch with time
- Use multiple textures when creating recipes - consider an ingredient's post-frozen state [i.e broccoli will be soft, while rice will remain firm] avoid...

- Steaming a bag of plain veggies and serving
- Putting frozen fruits and vegetables directly onto salads
- Ignoring proper time required to defrost frozen items, especially meats, fish, and seafood
- Purchasing pre-seasoned frozen items as they can be very high in sodium
- Using ingredients that all have a soft texture after cooking -i.e broccoli + cauliflower + squash. This works with puréed soups and mashes but not other recipes.

DIY | freeze your own foods

- Vacuum sealing is a fantastic way to lock in freshness
- Glass mason jars are terrific vessels for freezing liquids just be sure to leave 25% space at top to consider expansion when freezing
- You can freeze items you won't typically find in the grocery store
 - Scallions, good for 18 months
 - Fresh herbs, good for 12 months
 - Cooked grains and beans, good for 6 months
 - Homemade stock (water + veggie scraps + aromatics), good for 2-3 months
 - Homemade sauces (great way to utilize basil, parsley, or cilantro that is starting to turn), good for 2-3 months
 - Homemade soups (made from other freezer staples), good for 2-3 months
 - Bread (ends of loaves, stale pieces, etc.- great for breadcrumbs or bread pudding), 3 months
 - Roasted vegetables, good for 3 months
 - Raw vegetables, good for 6 months
 - Fruits (make sure to peel apples, bananas, etc. before freezing), good for 6 months

How to keep foods separated when freezing: For individual items and foods like cooked grains, spread on a parchment-lined baking sheet first and freeze for about 2 hours. Remove from pan and refreeze - this will prevent clumping.

Edamame Ginger Dip

ingredients

- 12 oz Edamame, shelled, frozen
- 1 tsp Garlic, frozen, minced
- 2 tsp Ginger, frozen, minced
- 1 Tbs Olive Oil
- 1 Lemon, large, juiced and zested
- 2 tsp Cilantro, frozen (2 Cubes)
